Horizon helps Holyhead pensioners feel the festive cheer

The J E O'Toole Centre received help from Horizon to hold the organisation's annual Christmas Party for the senior citizens of Holyhead.

The party, organised by the J E O'Toole Centre, which provides welfare advice and support to people on Anglesey, gave 150 senior citizens the chance to enjoy an afternoon packed full of festive fun and a full Christmas dinner, without having to worry about the cost.

Horizon's donation went towards providing the food and raffle prizes for the party and Holyhead High School Catering students, who helped prepare the food and dress tables. While local primary and secondary school students performed extracts from their Christmas productions to entertain the party-goers.

Christine Thompson at J E O'Toole Centre said, "We'd like to thank Horizon for their generous donation, without help from local businesses we wouldn't be able to make events like this happen. I know all the pensioners appreciate it, and everyone had a great time. I'd also like to thank Holyhead High School for their support, without their help the party wouldn't have been possible."

"The annual Christmas party is a popular event with the pensioners and gives them the chance to enjoy a sing-a-long and games with friends. The event also provides an opportunity for our staff to introduce themselves to people and inform them of the services the J E O'Toole Centre offer."
